Olympic success for JFIMS

July 2011

“James Fisher Inspection and Measurement Services (JFIMS) was recently awarded a contract for radiological detection for the Olympic Delivery Authority”.

The JFIMS team has been extremely successful with our long term partners in the supply, installation and long term maintenance of a comprehensive suite of radiological detection equipment to a wide range of customers throughout the UK. The high quality standards, exhaustive equipment testing and calibration combined with exceptional training and experience of the team provide an assured world class performance.

Installation and maintenance capability is provided for bases across the country with ‘first use’ and calibration testing provided from new facilities at Deeside.

The emphasis on quality is supported by the training provided to the team. Rob Watson, JFIMS Service Manager, commented ‘Our customers demand exacting quality standards for performance and reliability which we strive to achieve through continuous staff training and development programmes and reinforcement of the quality culture. Our success is demonstrably measured through contract successes and commendations from the customer base’.
